Episode one

Edward Davis is called to the bedside of his grandmother who desires to acquaint him with certain family secrets before she passes away. The scene fades to the home of Lord Sanderson in the fifteenth century. Edward Davis returning from a voyage of adventure has made his fortune and seeks to claim his bride, Janice, daughter of Lord Sanderson. Sanderson refuses to sanction the betrothal and orders Davis from his home. Davis leaves but returns later and elopes with Janice. They are seen leaving by Lord Bellamy, who with the consent of Lord Sanderson aspires to the hand of Janice. Bellamy accuses Lord Sanderson of abetting the elopment and in the ensuing quarrel Lord Bellamy is murdered by Sanderson. Davis in the mean time has taken his bride to his rooms at the Blue Bear Inn. By morning the alarm has been spread and at Lord Bellamy's suggestion a posse goes to the Blue Bear Inn to apprehend Davis. He escapes by diving from a window to the water below and makes his way to a waterfront dive frequented by sailors. In the mean time Lord Bellamy finding Davis gone, forces Janice to accompany him to her home. The crew of a merchant ship seek to shanghai a waterfront waif and Davis comes to the rescue. A terrific struggle ensues which ends in a lamp being hurled to the floor causing the place to be enveloped in flames just as the gang drag both Davis and the waif towards the door.
